18 ABSTRACT Curtis Jr (2015, 2017) presents a motivation and qualitative sample structure of higher education design.
19 Curtis Jr (2018) describes the technical administrative processes of higher education completion using qualitative information
20 concerning the methods of transfer to the Education Foundation and JECJEF University. Wikipedia (2013) suggests "...transfer is the 21 anticipated" movement a student considers "between education providers and the related institutional processes supporting...
22 post-secondary learners who move...completed coursework or training...applicable to a degree."Transfers "between different education
23 providers" and institutions "varied." Furthermore, "...Student mobility spans institutions and regions, differing policies and practices often
24 extending...degree completion by...one semester" (General Accounting Office, National Center of Education Statistics, 2005). "...By 25 mid-2010, 2.2 million students...experienced" higher education at "4,000 higher education institutions in 33 participating countries
26 (European commission and European Union Lifelong Learning, 2007-2013)." Effective description and completion of transferring to 27 a graduate program is vital to the success of strong graduation candidates, i.e. Doctorate of Philosophy candidates, seeking regional and 28 international association and publications with academia, government and private sector researchers.

6 TRANSFERING TO EDUCATION FOUNDATION, JECJEF UNIVERSITY

”...transfer is the anticipated, movement a student considers, “between education providers and the related institutional processes supporting...post-secondary learners who move...completed coursework or training...applicable to a degree.”Transfers “between different education providers” and institutions “varied.” “The application, applicability and articulation of prior course credits from one college or university to another culminates in a student’s transfer and enrollment in a program of study” and “aspiring to complete a college credential. The assessment of prior learning and the articulation of credit offered to a prospective student varies based upon institutional practices and the enforcement of government policies..” or “negotiated rules.” “...Student mobility spans institutions and regions, differing policies and practices often extending...degree completion by...one semester (General Accounting Office and the National Center of Education Statistics, 2005).” ...By mid-2010, 2.2 million students...experienced.” higher education at “4,000 higher education institutions in 33 participating countries (European commission and European Union Lifelong Learning, 2007-2013).” Education Foundation Preliminary Papers, with sincere gratitude to EF P.RA.
